Departmental Overview

The Athletic Study Center provides holistic student development, academic support, and academic advising services to the student athlete population at UC Berkeley.

The Learning Specialist position serves to support academic and personal development of student athletes. This position works closely with the Learning Specialist Coordinator, Academic Advisors, and other Learning Specialists to assess the academic and holistic needs of student athletes and to coordinate specialized programs and services that allow students to develop as independent, self-reliant learners. Other services may include developing individual study plans, recognizing and addressing academic and non-academic barriers to academic success, and counseling on other aspects that may affect student retention and academic success. These functions must be performed in a high-stress environment where consequences are both immediate and long-range and are highly visible both within and outside the institution. While the Learning Specialist does not report to Intercollegiate Athletics, they still work in close consultation and collaboration with coaches and other IA support staff, and require the incumbent to have the ability to adhere to and comply with NCAA, PAC-12, and University rules and regulations.

Responsibilities

* Serves as a learning specialist for a caseload of student athletes from various teams. Oversees and provides necessary academic support such as skill building, exam preparation, writing skills, etc. Some travel may be necessary to fulfill these duties.

* Develops and monitors individual learning plans for student athletes assigned to their caseload. Monitoring includes: communication with graduate and undergraduate tutors, reviewing reports generated from the student athlete database, assessing students' progress at the end of each term, and making recommendations for future academic support.

* Communicates with Academic Advisors to keep them informed and involved with the academic and degree progress of student-athletes on their assigned teams. In collaboration with advisor, reviews alternative academic options, dealing with scheduling conflicts, and similar issues. Assists advisors in preparing academic progress reports for coaches and Intercollegiate Athletics staff.
