Key accountabilities and responsibilities

- Serve as a UDL and Inclusive Course Design Expert in UBs LMS.
- Develop training and advocate for accessible pedagogy.
- Collaborate with campus partners in advocating for increased adoption of UDL guidelines.
- Serve on the classroom design and rehabilitation committee to advise on classroom accessibility features.

The Office of Curriculum, Assessment, and Teaching Transformation (CATT) at the University at Buffalo promotes educational excellence through: support of instructional and learning environments design; assessment of program and teaching effectiveness; and dissemination of evidence-based instructional strategies. Each office within the department supports the mission of educational excellence.

Educational Effectiveness & Learning Analytics (EELA) supports program improvements through the program assessment and review process and through student evaluations of teaching. The Teaching Transformation Team supports the effective design of courses and curricula through evidence-based approaches. The office of Learning Environments & Technologies works to establish in-person and virtual learning environments that promote effective teaching and learning. The Research, Analytics & Strategic Initiatives team promotes the scholarship of teaching and learning and helps to provide strategic direction for CATT.
