Job Description

Overview

The New Entry Food Hub is a project of New Entry Sustainable Farming Project \(New Entry\), a beginning farmer-training program. The Food Hub is an extension of our educational programming for new farmers and is a practical training platform and curricula to educate producers on all aspects of business development, food safety and commercial direct market and wholesale readiness. The Food Hub embodies a unique relationship between beginning farmer producers and consumers, which benefits consumers, small-scale limited-resource farmers, local communities and the environment.

This is an on-site position based at New Entry's Beverly, MA, Moraine Farm Office. This is also a two-year limited term position that is renewable based upon continued funding.

The Food Hub provides market readiness training and technical assistance to new and beginning farmers who are the main suppliers of the Food Hub. The Food Hub distributes fresh, locally grown produce to over a dozen distribution points around the greater Boston area through a CSA program, a low-income food access program, a mobile market, value-added food production, and sales to schools and institutions.

The Food Hub Co-Manager will co-manage all activities associated with a multi-farmer Food Hub, including the below:

- Marketing and sales
- Managing distribution logistics
- Grants and financial management
- Serving as an extension of New Entry's Farmer Training Program to lead the Food Hub in maintaining an excellent reputation for high quality, locally grown products, professional customer service, and consumer engagement in the local food system.

What We're Looking For

Basic Requirements:

- Sufficient work experience to demonstrate core skills and competencies; knowledge and skills as typically acquired through a Bachelor's degree in related discipline and 3+ years of related experience OR Master's degree and 1-2 years related experience
- Minimum of 2-3 years supervisory experience require
- Prior entrepreneurial experience in supervising/managing a produce operation, food hub, or agricultural business is essential.
- Demonstrated experience in working with people in an entrepreneurial business environment which includes a level of business development, strategic thinking, business and financial management, and understanding of community based food systems
- Significant grant writing, grant management, program delivery, and fundraising experience
- Teaching experience with adult learners and technical assistance provision desired
- Experience communicating expectations in a learning environment to help farmers achieve their goals
- Community organizing and cross-cultural experience helpful
- Prepared to build relationships with beginning, immigrant, and refugee farmer participants and volunteers of all abilities
- Experience in building relationships and educating consumers
- Excellent customer service skills
- Working knowledge of computer software (MS Office, especially Excel database and spreadsheets, social media, Salesforce CRM, website content development, graphic design/Canva)
