Job Description

Overview

The Fletcher School is the United States' first professional graduate school of international affairs. Since 1933 Fletcher's multi-disciplinary education in international relations, law, and business, has prepared the world's leaders to become innovative problem-solvers in government, private sector, and non-governmental organizations. The Fletcher School seeks to fulfill its mission in the most environmentally sensible way possible.

What You'll Do

The Associate Director of Corporate and External Relations is responsible for developing and maintaining productive relationships with corporate and other essential partners (e.g. international organizations, development banks, etc.) critical to The Fletcher School's mission. This role also oversees the outward facing networking and activities of the Institute for Business in the Global Context (IBGC) at The Fletcher School.

Fletcher's and IBGC's missions acknowledge an essential reality: business activities, systems and markets are key to an understanding of global affairs and advancing sustainable development. In collaboration with the Dean for Global Business, the Associate Director will develop a roadmap and goals for strategic partnerships and manage the people and processes to bring them to fruition. This includes an outreach strategy, marketing for IBGC, steering the outward facing aspects of IBGC, e.g. website, publications, social media, etc. with the goal of advancing student employment opportunities, fundraising, research and data collaborations, consulting and experiential learning opportunities, executive education, media and marketing collaborations, etc.

The Associate Director will also collaborate with departments across the school/Tufts including faculty relations, Office of Career Services, Office of Development and Alumni and the team within the Institute for Business in the Global Context
