Departmental Overview

About the California Policy Lab The California Policy Lab (CPL) generates research insights for government impact. Through hands-on partnerships with government agencies, CPL performs rigorous research across issue silos and builds the data infrastructure necessary to improve programs and policies that millions of Californians rely on every day. We work on California's most urgent issues, including homelessness, poverty, criminal justice reform, and education inequality. At its Berkeley site, CPL resides as a center within the Institute for Research on Labor and Employment (IRLE).

CPL recognizes the value of having a diverse staff at all levels of the organization. We are looking for equity-minded applicants who represent and understand the diverse racial and ethnic, gender identity, sexual orientation, educational, socioeconomic, cultural, and disability backgrounds present in California. When you join our team, you can expect to be part of an inclusive and equity-focused community.

keep projects moving forward. They are responsible for managing critical aspects of our engagements, including developing and managing relationships with government partners; coordinating project teams; helping to prepare reports and presentations; helping to prepare grant applications and reports; and drafting other policy-relevant deliverables. Research Managers manage team meetings, coordinate project permissions, track project deadlines and deliverables, and may coordinate implementation of research designs under PI supervision. Research Managers may also conduct data analyses.

Working closely with CPL's faculty affiliates, the Research Manager is the day-to-day project manager on CPL projects related to the Committee on the Revision of the Penal Code (CRPC) and works closely with the Committee. The ideal Research Manager has demonstrated project management skills, including meeting facilitation, managing project timelines, and communicating with internal and external stakeholders. They have experience using Excel and statistical software, such as Stata, R, or Python. Experience building dashboards and data visualizations using Tableau, PowerBi or similar software is preferred. The Research Manager is able to take initiative and learn new skills quickly. They work well in a team setting and have strong interpersonal and communication skills, both verbal and written. Subject area knowledge of the criminal system and/or criminal justice administrative data is strongly preferred. Prior experience managing IRBs and grants and working with Salesforce or similar content management system is also desirable.

The position will be based at our UC Berkeley offices, with the option of working remotely up to two days per week. The position may require some travel to Sacramento to build and maintain relationships with state government partners. The Research Manager will report to Researcher Alissa Skog and will work closely with Research Director Johanna Lacoe and the other CRPC Principal Investigators, Executive Director Evan White, CPL's research affiliates, and CPL's talented research staff. Key responsibilities of the position include:

- Manages relationship with government partner (CRPC). Relationship management consists of regular engagement and client management, troubleshooting issues, coordinating data access for researchers, and being the main point of contact for those partners at CPL.
- Coordinates CRPC project team, sets deadlines and deliverables, drafts meeting agendas and notes, manages IRB applications, and facilitates successful project completion.
- Works with CRPC Principal Investigators and researchers to support implementation of research studies.
- Co-authors reports, analyses, and other publications for partners, the public, and other audiences. Presents findings to partners and may represent CPL at conferences and external meetings.
