The Department of Epidemiology and Environmental Health (EEH) seeks a Graduate Programs Administrator to join their administrative team. This position has a primary focus on supporting all our nearly 125 (and growing) graduate students from application to graduation, as well as providing support for various department administrative matters as assigned.

Specific responsibilities include, but are not limited to:

- Providing support to students, faculty, departmental leadership, and staff, at each phase of the student life-cycle, from the prospective student and admissions phase, orientation, enrollment, academic advising and other student services, through to graduation and transition to career.
- Provide strategic advice to the chair, director of graduate studies, and program directors on graduate enrollment and improving the graduate student experience.
- Act as the primary contact for all our graduate students, especially as they are onboarded to the department and its various activities.
- Provide prescriptive advising to matriculating graduate students on areas such as degree requirements, course options, and the processing of various forms related to degree completion.
- Maintain various academic and student records including, but not limited to, enrollment data, course evaluations, alumni contacts and surveys, etc.
- In support of graduate student activities, provide business support such as booking air travel, lodging, and itinerary preparation for student travel, as well as processing student appointments and scholarships.
- As a member of the department's administrative team, the incumbent will be asked to provide general business support as needed, including but not limited to, processing of adjunct/volunteer appointments, assisting with faculty travel, and event planning and support.

Position
Summary

This position requires strong professional judgement and independent resourcefulness, while handling time-sensitive matters that require excellent problem-solving skills and confidentiality.
